A cerious story about General Grant's Arabian steeds is told by Mrs. Hooper. When the borses were delivered to the American official who was deputed to represent General Grant, he found that through some was deputed to represent General Grant, he found that through some hocus-pocus of the employes of the Sultan's stables, one of the horses selected had been exchanged for a dismal beast, being lame and generally unsound. Our countryman did not wish to forward so wretched an animal to the United States, yet, what was to be done? To have refused the Sultan's gift would have been a deadly insult, and, besides, he had no right to do snything of the kind; while to find fault with it would have been a deadlier insult. Finally, a bright idea struck him. The unsound horse happened to be black, so he sent for the high and mighty Turkish official who had the matter in charge, and regretfully informed him that, though General Grant was enchanted with the two noble steeds that were accorded him by the magnificence of the Sultwo noble steeds that were accorded him by the magnificence of the Sultan, he would, unfortunately, be unable to use the black one, as horses of that color were only employed in funerals in America, and to offer or accept one as a gift was held to be an excepting bad omen in that country. The courieous Turk was profuse in his civilities and apologies; the black horse was taken away, and a sound and handsome animal of another color was sent in its stead.

Wanted Quiet.

A nervous-looking man went into a store the other day and sat down for half an hour or so, when a clerk asked him if there was anything she could do for him. He said no, he didn't want anything. She went away and he sat there half an hour longer, when the proprietor went to him and asked if he wanted to be shown anyasked if he wanted to be shown anything. "No," said the nervous man, "I just want to sit around. My physician has recommended perfect quiet for me, and above all things I must avoid being in crowds. Noticing that you did not advertise in the newspapers, I thought that this would be as quiet a place as I could find, so I just dropped in for a few hours of isolation." The merchant picked up a bolt of paper cambric to brain him, but the man went out. He said all but the man went out. He said all he wanted was a quiet life.

Hiding While a Man was Tried for His Murder,

From the Emporio Ledger. Parsons, Kansas, had a sensation. About two years ago a man named Forest met another named Buckles at the house of one Rambo. Buckles then left the house, leaving his over-coat and watch, and was not heard of again. Forrest and Rambo were arrested, and narrowly escaped being lynched by a mob. Forrest was tried, but the jury failed to agree. A day or two ago Buckles was found quietly at work near Westport, Missouri. at work near Westport, Missouri. Although he knew Forrest was being tried for his murder, yet he kept him-self concealed until he was discovered by the efforts of Forrest's attorney.

We deem it fit at this time to repeat the old sermon in regard to Fair ek. The good name of our town, and to a great extent the volume of future business, depends upon the reception given to strangers.

Every business man should prepare his premises and keep clean the adjacent street. There should be no pains spared to make the town attractive nd the stay of each visitor pleasant.

By co-operation we will succeed in placing our town and county in the ood esteem of all who come to us during the Fair. Every citizen should try earnestly to extend a welcome and secure good treatment for every stranger.

The GAZETTE will work faithfully for the interest of every one of its readers, and endeavor to be a proper exponent of town, county and State. EDITORIAL NOTES.

The GAZETTE has published the fact of its discovery that Allison, the fam ous Colorado highwayman, was none other than Charlie Annis, an escaped Nevada convict. Following the publication of this fact, Sheriff Kyle, of Eureks, went to Colorado after his man. The acting Governor was willing to get rid of Annis, but the Attorney General objected, and Kyle returned without his man. If Annis, or Allison is convicted there, he will get, on all Niagara Falls on a special train in the charges, 130 years. The GAZETTE Sheriff Kyle deserves credit for his attempt to bring Annis back.

THE SCOVILLE INQUEST.

Coroner Dickens empaneled a jury the Justice Court froms yesterday afternoon and preceded with his ex-amination of the cause of Major Scoville's death. District Attorney Rankin and Gen. Kittrell appeared for the State and Judge Webster, Col. Lindsay and Mr. Allen for the defendants. M. C. Gardiner, father-in law of the deseased was sworn and testified to Scoviile's death at his residence on October 3rd. Harlow Scoville, father of deceased also testified to the time and place of death, after which Dr. John A. Lewis was sworn and testified. Following is a summary of his testimony showing the nature of the wound and course of the ball. This testimony was founded upon attendance on the case and the post mortem examination at which Drs. Lee, Lewis and Bergman were present.

"I saw a gunshot wound between the sixth and seventh ribs on Sco ville's breast. It was on the left side and two and one-half inches from the median line. The ball ranged downward and backward, and was found immediately beneath the skin. The ball entered between the sixth and seventh ribs, cutt ing the skin and the tissues beneath, the disphragm, the left kidney, and the muscles immediately back of the kidneys. This wound caused Scoville's death. It was necessarily fatal. The ball ranged downward, at, I think, an angle of 35 degrees. The exit of the ball was not a self-jocker—silver-plated, wood—an handle. It is full loaded. On the traveled about ten inches.
